SUMMARY

The Joint Unit Intensive Learning Unit in Personnel Psychology (International Winter School) has an intervention approach. This approach refers to the promotion of effective and positive change, based on the scientific knowledge and the professional experience. Its focus is on Theoretical design and intervention competences in Personnel Psychology.

Theories and intervention skills prepare students for the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of changes and interventions that aim to improve behavior, situations and psychological processes in the area of Personnel Psychology. This knowledge and competences also prepares students to design new models, strategies, methods and tools.

TEACHING METHODOLOGY

The learning process takes place using two main systems, through the Virtual Classroom at the University of Valencia with the tutoring by teachers, and by sessions of oral presentations and working group's activities. Specifically the learning methodology to be used mainly are as follow:

TRAINING ACTIVITIES

Seminars taught by guest professors

Individual and / or group activities

Participatory processes (debates, discussions, etc...) with the involvement of students and teachers.

Oral presentations by students.

Reading articles reports and other materials related to the research and practice of Psychology of Organizations.

Use and design of assessment tools in Organizational Psychology.

Participation in tutorials for training in different parts of the Master.

TEACHING METHODS

Master Classes;

Readings

Oral presentations

Design of tools and interventions

Guided exercises individually or/and in group

EVALUATION

The teacher in charge of each topic will evaluate the learning achieved by students on this issue taking into account the work done during the first phase and the work done during the stage of "boarding". The professors of the Universitat de València will evaluate the final works (Assignments) and provide detailed feedback to the students. In the evaluation of learning, the following will be taken into account:

Quality of the oral presentations of the students.

Preparation of "assignments" for the integration of knowledge or for the analysis of a relevant topic.

Critical analysis of articles and other materials.

Quality in the use and design of instruments.

Quality in the design of interventions.

Due to the characteristics of the subject and the emphasis on the development of competences, the performance of an examination is not considered adequate. It is considered that the acquisition of the competences that are intended to be developed can not be evaluated correctly by means of this evaluation system.
