SUMMARY

This course is structured in two parts: Political and Social Philosophy I and Political and Social Philosophy II. The course will allow students to obtain a frame of reference for the development of a wide set of general competences of the degree in Philosophy. The syllabus offers a set of philosophical reflections on human sociability, analyzes the nature of social and political phenomena, and presents the major political theories, making possible an in-depth knowledge of the most relevant theoretical perspectives on society, the state and democracy.
