OUTCOMES

1301 - Degree in Audiovisual Communication

- Knowledge of communication as a process and the different elements that comprise it. The ability to assimilate knowledge of the specificity of discourse, as well as the representation methods proper to the different technological and audiovisual media. Familiarity with the different theories, methods and problems involved in audiovisual communication and its different languages.
- Competence in a compared analysis of the different contemporary media and media supports.
- Knowledge of the different languages, codes and representation methods of the different technological and audiovisual media: photography, cinema, radio, television, video and electronic image, the Internet, etc. through their aesthetic and industrial proposals and their evolution over the years, which should generate a capacity to analyse audiovisual narratives and works, taking into account iconic messages such as the texts and products of the socio-political and cultural conditions of a given historic era.
- Knowledge and the ability to apply resources, elements, methods and procedures of the construction processes and analysis of the linear and non-linear audiovisual narratives, including the design, establishment and development of strategies, as well as the applications of persuasive communication policies in audiovisual markets.
- Knowledge of spatial imagery and iconic representations in space, both in still and moving images, as well as the elements involved in art direction. The ability to analyse and plan the relationships between images and sounds from an aesthetic and narrative viewpoint in the different audiovisual supports and technologies. The ability to apply image composition techniques and procedures to the different audiovisual supports, based on knowledge of the classical laws and aesthetic and cultural movements of the history of the image by means of the new communication technologies. It also includes knowledge of the psychological models specifically developed for visual communication and persuasion by means of the image.
- The ability to carry out the analysis of the structures, contents and styles of television and radio programmes as well as the different variables that influence their configuration and the communication and entertainment processes generated by them.
