SUMMARY

La asignatura de Sociología es una materia troncal en los estudios de Pedagogía. El contenido de la asignatura vertebría dos elementos clave: por un lado, los contenidos conceptuales y teóricos fundamentales para la formación de los profesionales en el campo social (desigualdades sociales, procesos de socialización,...); y por otro lado, el aprendizaje y aplicación de la perspectiva sociológica de análisis de la realidad, que pretende formar a futuros profesionales con una mirada global, crítica y en profundidad a la realidad que nos rodea.

Además, al tratarse de una asignatura del grado de Pedagogía, pretende proporcionar una aproximación cualificada al fenómeno educativo desde el análisis sociológico. Por eso, alcanza los contenidos que hemos considerado más relevantes para iniciar un análisis de la educación como fenómeno social, producto de una determinada configuración histórica, política, social, cultural y económica

- Develop the capacity for criticism and self-criticism.
- Develop, promote and revitalise interpersonal communication skills.
- Be prepared for independent lifelong learning.
- Be able to adapt to new situations.
- Show commitment to professional identity, development and ethics.
- Be able to conduct educational research in different contexts.
- Be able to recognise and value affective processes.
- Understand the theoretical references that constitute the human being as an active player in education.
- Diagnose needs, complex situations and possibilities of people as a basis for educational actions.
- Design educational plans, programmes, projects, actions and resources in different contexts.
- Develop tools for gathering and analysing educational information.
- Apply and coordinate educational programmes and methodologies for personal, social and professional development.
- Prepare and interpret technical, research and evaluation reports on educational actions, processes and results.
- Conduct prospective and evaluative studies on educational characteristics, needs and demands.
- Design programmes, projects and innovative proposals for training and for developing educational resources in work, family and institutional contexts, in both face-to-face and virtual environments.

- Develop strategies and techniques to promote participation and lifelong learning.
- Students must have the ability to gather and interpret relevant data (usually in their field of study) to make judgements that take relevant social, scientific or ethical issues into consideration.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

1. That the student gets started in a sociological view of reality, of society, its institutions and its dynamics, that allows adopting a well-founded reflective, critical and constructive spirit towards them.
2. That the students understand the main concepts and theoretical perspectives of sociological thought both classic and contemporary, and especially their contributions about the educational phenomenon.
3. That the student is able to analyze and understand the ways in which society reproduces inequalities and generates dynamics of control, conflict and transformation, in order to assume a role as active agents in such processes, especially from educational fields.
4. That the students are able to perform an analysis, from a critical and reflective sociological perspective, about the social context in which they live, taking into account, in particular, the Valencian reality and educational institutions and dynamics.

TEACHING METHODOLOGY

The subject is both theoretical and practical, and it aims at providing conceptual and methodological tools to face the analysis of society. Furthermore, it is an introductory course, which is directed to a pupil unfamiliar with the subject. The previous requires starting from the explanation of the topics by the teacher. But the subject also requires a personalized work of students who, based on the guidance of the teacher, analyse and reflect on the proposed materials, to reach a real understanding of the suggested proposals. Finally, given the nature of reflection on reality that characterises sociology as a science, it also raises the desirability of conducting activities to work the contrast between theoretical knowledge and the social and educational reality.

All the above lead us to structure the methodology of the subject in a way that it is not restricted to what happens in the classroom, but requires an effort of personal and group work, always under teacher guidance and supervision. For that several methodologies are put into play: theoretical explanation, text and news analysis and commentaries, reflection and group discussion, etc.

EVALUATION

The evaluation will include two blocks, each of which represents between 40 and 60% of the mark, this will be specified by the teacher at the beginning of the course. Both will have to be approved separately to pass the subject:

E1. Theory.

Final test exam for evaluating knowledge of the theoretical contents of the subject.

E2. Practical.

Different activities related contents of the course work.
