LEARNING OUTCOMES (RD 1393/2007) // NO CONTENT (RD 822/2021)

On completion of the course students should have acquired a critical and current awareness of the main contents of History over a broad time frame ranging from the origins of humankind to the end of the classical era. The acquisition of this information and the process employed to achieve it will be instruments for developing not only reading comprehension skills but also critical thinking and reasoned opinions.

Study of the topics must enable merely descriptive and diachronic visions to be overcome. Students must become aware of the relationship between past and present and become familiar with multi-causal reasoning and comparative perspectives.

TEACHING METHODOLOGYCLASSES

The classes will combine theoretical explanations of the course contents with practical analyses and commentaries on various materials, including texts, maps and documents. All activities are intended to encourage student participation.

PREPARATION FOR THEORY CLASSES

The teacher will inform students about which readings they should consult in order to prepare for these classes.

PREPARATION FOR PRACTICAL WORK

The teacher will set the guidelines for carrying out practical work in the relevant Annex as well as in class or in the virtual classroom throughout the course.

TUTORIALS

Students may consult their teachers during office hours on any aspect related to their classes, assignments and readings.

EVALUATION

Students will be evaluated according to the following procedure:

1. A final exam on a date set by the centre in order to evaluate the student's knowledge of the subject, written expression (terminology and discourse), and ability to relate and reason. This final exam will account for 60% of the student's final grade.

2. Tests, activities and exercises set by the teachers in the Annex and conducted during the course. These will account for 40% of the final grade. Students who commit plagiarism (copying from books, papers, and the Internet, etc. without citing the sources) will be given a fail (0 grade) in this course.

The second exam call will comprise the following procedure:

1. A final exam on the date set by the centre. This exam will include all the topics included in the course. As with the first call, the exam in the second call will account for 60% of the final grade.
2. The grades students have been awarded for their assignments during the course will be maintained at the second call and will again account for 40% of the final grade. These grades will remain in effect only for the current academic year.
