TEACHING METHODOLOGY

In addition to the theoretical and practical classes - which are intended to be participatory - throughout the course will be proposed as many activities suitable for the correct assimilation of the content of the subject, such as specific readings, participation in seminars or exhibition of works, in accordance with the schedule set forth.

The complementary activities of the subject will be approved by the Coordination Commission of the course or competent body; and will be announced in advance. Participation in them is compulsory.

EVALUATION

The evaluation of the theoretical part of the subject will be done through a written exam, which will represent 70% of the final grade. It will have a maximum duration of 2 hours. The students in the predetermined time, will develop the questions posed that will refer to the subjects that have been explained in the theoretical classes. It will be optional to take the oral exam.

The evaluation of the practical part of the subject will be done through a written exam, which will have a maximum duration of 1 hour. Students in the predetermined time, will develop the questions raised that will refer to a practical assumption similar to those discussed in class. It will be 30% of the final grade, provided that the theoretical part is approved.

The student has the possibility to commit his / her participation in class in a continuous way, to carry out activities and directed and autonomous works that will allow him / her to be exempt from the practical exam. This possibility should be consulted with the teacher.

Changes to the examination date will be in accordance with the regulations of the Centre. The student knows or, at least must know if there is a coincidence in the dates of exams, communicating it to the teacher with the required advance and adjusting to the norms of priority, duly approved.
