SUMMARY

The Final Degree Project (FDP) is within the module of Professional Placements under the topic of External Placements. Both subjects are academically linked. This is the last project that the student must complete before graduating from the Tourism Degree programme.

The FDP is the last assignment leading to the student being awarded the Degree qualification and should demonstrate the student's ability to bring together theoretical knowledge, acquired during the Tourism Degree, and practical experience acquired from the External Placements. In summary, the student will need to demonstrate that he/she has acquired the necessary skills and knowledge to undertake the challenge of being an expert in the field of Tourism.

Objectives of the Final Degree Project:

It is an academic project on a topic, problem or case study in the field of tourism. The work may deal with a topic or problem raised throughout the degree in Tourism or it may be related to the external internship (department, company or organization, sector, destination, etc., where the internship has been carried out), whenever possible. This project is developed autonomously by the student under the guidance of an academic tutor (a teacher). In the making of this project, the student must reflect a deep understanding of the topic/problem, demonstrate their capacity for analysis and reflection, apply the knowledge learnt in the subjects taken in the degree and show that they have acquired the outcomes of the degree. To this end, they must know how to search for, evaluate and treat relevant and reliable information (bibliography, data, etc.) on the subject, they must know how to give it an appropriate and coherent format, structure and style that communicates clearly and precisely, they must know how to avoid plagiarism by properly citing and referencing the bibliography used and, finally, to use a methodology in accordance with the objectives set out in the project.

- Work within different sociocultural environments, being sensitive to cultural diversity.
- Knowledge of the most prominent elements of artistic heritage within a particular area.

DESCRIPTION OF CONTENTS

1. STRUCTURE AND TYPOLOGY OF THE FDP

The FDP is composed of three parts: the project, a personal evaluation made by the student of the Tourism degree programme and a Curriculum Vitae (CV).

- 1- The project is in the form of a report, the contents of which can be related to:
- analysis of the sector/activity/location in which the placement has taken place.
 - analysis of the organisation/department in which the placement has taken place.
 - proposals-programmes-strategies for the sector activity/location in which the placement has taken place.
 - proposals-programmes-strategies for the organisation/department in which the placement has taken place.

The main focus should be on a correct description of the business or sector and of the specific problem that has been identified. The student will therefore need to refer to the academic literature that is related to that particular field, the type of business or the problem identified (theoretical framework).

2- Personal evaluation of the degree (maximum 400 words):

The student should make an assessment of the degree: the personal relevance of the teaching on the course, any areas for improvement and the positive aspects. This assessment should be made in a constructive manner, using a language that is appropriate and respectful.

3- Curriculum Vitae

A brief CV which specifies the average score of the credits gained, the level of accredited languages which have been obtained and any relevant foreign academic exchanges and professional experience gained.

2. THE SCOPE AND PRESENTATION FORMAT FOR THE FDP

The scope and format of the FDP will be decided by each lecturer/tutor. However, for the project, use of the following template is recommended:

1. FRONT COVER:

TEACHING METHODOLOGY

Allocation of tutor and department

The FDP committee will be in charge of guaranteeing that all students enrolled are assigned a department in which they can carry out their FDP, a tutor from that same department and a subsequent assessment. The tutor allocated will also be responsible for the External Work Placements.

The FDP committee will publish a list of the students, in order of averaged academic marks, along with a list of departments with available places for carrying out a project. The students, in the same order as the list, will then choose a place within a department.

Once students have been allocated to the different departments, each department will assign a tutor to their student/s. This decision will be announced on the Facultat d'Economia website

<http://go.uv.es/S6YzlaI>

Once this decision has been made, the tutor will organise a meeting with their assigned student where they will agree on a work plan and the specific topic to be researched, taking into account the External Work Placement programmes.

Role of the tutor

The tutors exercise their role in the External Work Placement and in the FDP. For the FDP, they are responsible for explaining the details of the project to the students, guiding the project's development, ensuring the student meets the objectives set out in the academic guide and that he/she completes an assessment. The assessment must be carried out in the form of a written report, using the template provided by the FDP Committee.

The tutor should encourage the student to develop an outline/content/index of the project and a plan or timeline of its different development stages. The tutor will have the final say as to whether the student can begin the proposed project.

Throughout this process students will be offered an adequate number of tutoring sessions. These tutoring sessions can be held in groups, with various students, or one-to-one. The objective of these tutoring sessions is to provide the student with general guidance on content, structure, objectives and FDP assessment methods, to follow progress regularly and to resolve queries and issues.

Student activities

The student must choose a specific topic of interest within their assigned area of their FDP. THE TOPIC OF THE FDP CANNOT BE ANYTHING THAT IS NOT RELATED TO TOURISM. They will need to present their outline/content/index of the project and a plan or timeline of the different development stages. Only once the tutor has agreed to the project will the student be able to commence.

The student must attend the tutor sessions set by their project tutor and follow the instructions of their tutor throughout the FDP. They must make various submissions to the tutor of their work as it progresses. If these steps are followed (to timescales and with satisfactory content) this will attract 20% of their final FDP grade.

The student must attend the tutor sessions set by their project tutor. In the event that the student is on an exchange programme, the tutor and the student will need to agree a calendar schedule and the most appropriate method for keeping in contact.

The student must follow the tutor's instructions whilst completing their FDP. To get the tutors approval and to be assessed, the student must attend a minimum of 3 tutor sessions on the planning, development and drafting of the FDP and must have handed in 70% of the written text at least 4 weeks before the FDP submission deadline. Additionally, at least one week prior to the official FDP submission deadline, the student will need to submit their final draft to their tutor, either in person or by email. Once the tutor has approved it, the student will then be able to hand in their finalised FDP through the submission system available on the online portal of the Universitat de València (entreu.uv.es).

Development of the work: The student will carry out the project under the guidance and help of their tutor. Some aspects of this work are: the gathering and sorting of resources and information; bibliographic consultations and database; fieldwork (carrying out surveys or in depth interviews, etc.); the drafting and editing of their written work. The FDP must be original and developed to lengths that demonstrate the professional capacity of a future graduate.

EVALUATION

Submission/Presentation of the Final Degree Project (FDP)

To be able to present the FDP for evaluation, the student must first have the tutor's approval, the student having submitted previous drafts of their FDP and having gained 90% of the degree's credits (216 credits).

The student has the right to two evaluations per academic year. Those students that enrol for the first time on the FDP opt for the second term. However, for second or successive subjects, students will have the option to bring their FDP and evaluation deadline forward to the first term.

Early Evaluation: Those students that, in order to finish their degree studies, still need to successfully complete a maximum of two subjects, along with the FDP and the external work placements, will be able to sign up to the earlier evaluation if they have already been enrolled previously. For more information see the FDP guide for the Facultat d'Economia here <http://go.uv.es/S6YzlaI>

The dates of the Submission and public presentation of the Final Degree Project of the Facultat d'Economia are published on the Facultat d'Economia website in the Final Degree Project section:

<http://go.uv.es/S6YzlaI>

Throughout the submission period, the student must present an electronic copy of their FDP (saved as one SINGLE document in PDF format) to be submitted via the online portal of the UV (entreu.uv.es)

The FDP, submitted electronically via Entreu (entreu.uv.es), is a process that all students must follow to hand in their FDP and, once submitted, they will receive a confirmation of receipt.

Assessing the Final Degree Project (FDP)

The FDP submitted via ENTREU does not guarantee the assessment of the work. For the FDP to be assessed, the student must have gained a minimum of 216 credits. The general office of the Facultat d'Economia will verify whether the required credits have been achieved.

Until this has been verified the FDP cannot be assessed. If, finally, the requirements are not met, the FDP will be marked as not submitted and this will be noted by the tutor alongside the subject taken.

Once the FDP has been accepted, the tutor will then assess it within 15 days. The decisions made during the assessment (without public advocacy) will be specified in a report or assessment form (including the numerical mark) and each tutor will add it to the Assessment Record. The highest classification that a tutor can give a student's FDP is an Outstanding.

Request for tribunal review. A tribunal review can only be requested when the student has received a grade from their tutor that is above 9 and the tutor considers the FDP worthy of a distinction. The student must then make a request to the FDP committee for a public presentation of the FDP in front of a Review Tribunal of the FDP, and present a report from the tutor in support of this petition.

The tutor's report is a written report which lists the reasons why they believe the project warrants a review.

The FDP committee will then decide, within the examination period, the court dates, the relation and order of the projects to be presented, the location and other relevant aspects.

The Review Tribunal of the FDP will be comprised of three lecturers/tutors from the FDP of that degree.

The student must present the FDP publically (using visuals such as slides, posters, etc.) following the FDP Review Tribunal's guidelines.

After the assessment, the Tribunal will fill in a report to be presented to the General Office of the Facultat d'Economia where, if the outcome is successful, the official records will be updated.

More information can be found on the Facultat d'Economia website in the section under Final Degree Project here <http://go.uv.es/S6YzlaI>

Plagiarism. All facts and ideas taken from another author must be referenced. The opposite of this is plagiarism, and will mean an immediate fail of the FDP subject as reflected in Article 15 of the assessment and grading regulation of the Universitat de València for both undergraduate and postgraduate degrees: "In the event of identifying plagiarism during the assessment of a students work, the grade will be given as zero, regardless of the disciplinary action that will follow and the appropriate penalty in accordance with current legislation".
