SUMMARY

The elaboration of this Academic Guide is the result of the co-ordination of the three Departments having responsibilities in teaching the subject. It has a directive character containing minimum indications. Each professor, in the framework of his or her legal discipline and background, will focus on specific topics in conformity with his or her academic freedom.

1) Present status of the subject within the study plan, other related subjects and continuity with those subjects

The subject “Legal Institutions of the European Union” (LIEU) is taught during the second term of first academic year in the Law Degree as well as in the Double Degrees “ADE-Derecho” and “Derecho-Criminología”. Although it is under the responsibility of three Departments of the Law Faculty (the Administrative Law Department, the section “Constitutional Law” of the Constitutional Law, Political and Administration Science, and the section “International Public Law and International Relations” of the “Miaja de la Muela” International Law Department) it is actually a transversal subject in which all legal disciplines are involved. Since the accession of Spain to the European Communities (the precedent to the current European) in 1986, a new legal order (the previous so-called European Community Law, whose current denomination is “European Union Law”) co-exists with domestic legal orders of Member States of the Union: as a result of this co-existence, European Union Law determines in a substantial way the material content of domestic legislation and the entire system of law sources, as well as its application and interpretation. Together with this, it must be taken into consideration the large scope of areas having connection with sovereign competence whose exercise has been conferred, partly or totally, by the Spanish State to the European Union, what finally implies that almost all legal disciplines at the domestic legal level have been strongly conditioned by political and legal action of the European Union.

2) Short description of the subject, typology of contents and possible applications.

The subject “Legal Institutions of the European Union” includes in a broad sense the study of European Union (EU) Law. This legal order comprises not only the supra-national normative aspects governing the structure and the internal functioning of the EU –its institutional system, the European legal order, its competences– but also the relationship of the EU with its Member States, as well as with third countries and other international organisations.

The Syllabus of the subject, whose content is reproduced below, has been structured in five parts (or thematic units –T.U– according to section 6 of the present guide):

In the First Part, it is studied the process of European construction since its origins till the present configuration of the “European Union” after the entry into force of the Lisbon Treaty on 1st December 2009. In this first part, it is also explain what is the European Union as well as the distribution of competences between the Union and its Member States.

In the Second Part, the institutional system of the EU is explained together with the description of the composition, competences and functioning of all European institutions and bodies.

The Third Part describes and analyses the legal order of the European Union, its law sources system and the application of European Law by both the Union and Member States.

The Fourth Part studies the judicial structure of the Union and the procedures allowing the Court of Justice of the European Union to ensure the enforcement and application of European Union Law.

Finally, the Fifth Part deals with the competence and action of the EU at international level, including not only the Common Foreign and Security Policy (CFSP) and the Common Security and Defence Policy, but also the Union's relations with other international organisations and third countries. In this last case, cooperation policy and humanitarian aid take an important place.

TEACHING METHODOLOGY

Students are supposed to learn the theoretical-dogmatic knowledge integrating the subject “Legal Institutions of the European Union”/”Instituciones Jurídicas de la Unión Europea”, whose content (syllabus) is included in section 5 (infra). The subject is composed of 6 credits ECTS (“European credit transfer and accumulation system”/”Sistema europeo de transferencia y acumulación de créditos”), according to the following parameters: 6 credits x 25 hours = 150 hours (RD 1125/2003, Art. 4.5).

The total number of hours is distributed in three types of activities to be carried out by students:

- Guided activities (outside the classroom): 30 hours.
- Activities requiring the actual presence of students and professors: 60 hours.
 - a) Theoretical Classes: 30 hores.
 - b) Applied Classes: 20 hores.
 - c) Complementaries Activities and exams: 10 hores.
- Students’ own work: 60 hours.

During the academic year, all student groups following the subject (together with the activities which will be proposed by their instructor) will carry out one activity under the co-ordination of the three involved Departments teaching the subject (Administrative, Constitutional and International Law). In particular, it will be held a workshop on the access and use of electronic resources of the EU.

EVALUATION

Evaluation system.

Each professor may indicate in the annex to his/her teaching guide the existence of any minimum requirement to pass the subject (either in relation to the global exam or to the continuous assessment). If no minimum requirement is established in the annex, it will be understood that there is no minimum requirement in the global exam or in the continuous evaluation to pass the subject

A. Oral or written test consisting of one or more exams, which may have an objective nature and include theoretical and practical questions and/or practical cases.

B. Continuous assessment of each student, based on regular attendance and active participation in activities developed in class, such as resolution of practical cases or participation in workshops, delivery of papers and/or reports and/or oral presentations about such activities, either individually or in group, taking into consideration the degree of involvement and the effort done by the student in the teaching-learning process and his/her skills and attitude shown during the development of such activities.

HYBRID TEACHING

If the academic authority determines it, this subject will be adapted to the hybrid teaching model established by the Faculty of Law, through which face-to-face theoretical-practical classes will be taught in discontinuous weeks for the student. To this end, the Secretary of the Faculty will divide the group into as many subgroups as necessary, teaching in the classroom, at the time established for the subject, to one of the subgroups each week in accordance with the calendar established by the Faculty, providing for the others, as a priority, follow-up of the class through synchronous VIDEO CONFERENCE.

The contents, volume of work and evaluation are maintained in the terms initially foreseen in the academic guide.

NON-PRESENTIAL TEACHING

If the academic authority establishes the change in non-classroom teaching, this subject will be taught to all students under the same conditions as those indicated for the non-classroom teaching part of the hybrid system.

The contents, volume of work and evaluation are maintained in the terms initially foreseen in the academic guide.
