TEACHING METHODOLOGY

There will be 90 hours for the thematic units. The teaching methodology will consist of lectures and both additional and applied activities.

EVALUATION

Grading will attend to the complete and thorough work done by the student throughout the course, his/her participation during the classes, the attendance to the seminars and the marks of the final exam, taking into account the contents, the ability to relate the different administrative legal concepts and the ability to communicate his/her knowledge properly.

The global exam will take place as established in the official calendar. This exam will be public. When the exam is decided to be oral, the students could ask for its recording.

The global exam will do the 70% of the final grade.

ADDENDUM COVID-19

This addendum will only be activated if the health situation requires so and with the prior agreement of the Governing Council

1. TEACHING METHOD

If the students can occupy the assigned classroom respecting the minimum safety distance eventually set, or the health authorities allow it, the teaching will be done in person.

In the event that it is necessary to opt for the semi-attendance model by turns, professors will give the classes to the corresponding sub-group, guaranteeing that it will be accessible to the rest of the group, either synchronously or asynchronously, or both, at the discretion of each professor, which will be specified in the corresponding Annex to the Teaching Guide.

Tutorials will be carried out either in person (through the University's corporate mail, the Virtual Classroom tutorial forum or any other means or virtual platform provided by the University for academic activities, such as Black Board Collaborate or Microsoft Teams) or by appointment with the corresponding professor.

If, due to health conditions, it is not possible to access the University of Valencia's facilities, teaching and tutoring will be carried out entirely on a non-attendance basis. In this case, the classes must be made available to students by one of the above means, at the discretion of the corresponding professor.

2. EVALUATION

All the annexes to the teaching guides of Administrative Law must provide for continuous assessment of between 30% and 100% of the subject's grade. Continuous evaluation may be carried out through the resolution of case studies, completion of assignments, follow-up tests, participation and preparation of classes, delivery of outlines or summaries, control of assignments and extended readings, among others. The remaining percentage of the course evaluation will be done through a final test (which can be oral or written) which will be done in person. In the Annex to the teaching guide, the specific percentages and the concrete way in which the evaluation will be carried out will be detailed.

If, on the dates marked on the official calendar for the final exam in person, it is not possible to access the University of Valencia facilities due to health conditions, the exam in person will be replaced by a test to be taken at a distance.
