TEACHING METHODOLOGY

1.- Classroom teaching is allocated 75 hours, and thus is not possible to study in class all criminal offences in force in our criminal legal system. However, a selection of the most important crimes will be examined in the course, to provide the student with a better understanding of the subject.

2.-Continuous assessment:

It will consist of the preparation of assignments, presentations and the holding of seminars and case law analysis.

3.-Complementary activities:

As complementary activities, visits will be made to courts and different institutions.

EVALUATION

The final grade of the subject will be determined on the basis of the grades obtained in the continuous assessment carried out, worth 30% of the marks, and sitting the final exam on the dates set by the faculty, which accounts for 70% of the marks.

It will be necessary to obtain a minimum pass mark (5) in the final exam in order to pass the subject, regardless of the mark obtained in the continuous assessment.

The professor's addendum will detail the conditions of the continuous assessment and the oral or written nature of the final exam, as well as whether a partial exam will be held, with or without discharging effects, on the dates set for this purpose.

Students who do not take the continuous assessment may sit the final exam at the first call, and the mark obtained will be limited to the weighted value that this test has in the final mark (70%), so that, as a maximum, a 7 may be obtained as the final grade.

In the event of failing the first call, the grade obtained in the continuous assessment will be retained for the second call. If the professor's addendum foresees that there is any continuous assessment activity that can be recovered in the second call, the addendum will establish the procedure for making up those activities.
