SUMMARY

Private International Law is a compulsory subject taught in 3rd year of the Degree in Law during all the school year (1st and 2nd semester). Its workload is 9 credits (total dedication of students, 225h).

In general terms, Private International Law is a field of the national legal system aimed at regulating private international relationships, i.e. those relationships containing a foreign element.

The Spanish legislator, being aware of the peculiarities of relationships with foreign elements, has designed a field of law specifically devoted to tackle and resolve this kind of issues. Thus, Private International Law shares with other areas of law the common national origin (although in the last years EU and other international sources have increasingly played a significant role in this field) but differs from them as to the object.

Through the study of this area of law students will be able to identify private international legal relationships and differentiate them from domestic private relationships, since this is the key requirement to apply this field. Students will reach a deep knowledge of the Spanish system of PIL (coming from any source, either domestic or international), in order to acquire the necessary tools to tackle and resolve cases with foreign elements that arose in daily life. This mainly means to resolve correctly the three main issues covered by this field of law: international jurisdiction of Spanish courts, the legal system to be applied to this kind of relationships –either Spanish law or foreign rules- and the recognition and enforcement of foreign decisions. Furthermore, the subject also deals with procedural issues concerning proceedings with foreign elements heard before Spanish courts.

PREVIOUS KNOWLEDGE

Relationship to other subjects of the same degree

There are no specified enrollment restrictions with other subjects of the curriculum.

Other requirements

A special attitude of students is absolutely necessary because they will face new institutions unknown by other fields of law previously studied in the Degree in Law, taking into account its special features, mainly related with its object and its sources. It also requires an advanced knowledge of Civil Law, Commercial Law and Procedural Law.

OUTCOMES

1303 - Degree in Law

- Be able to use legal sources (legal, jurisprudential and doctrinal).
- Be able to read and interpret legal texts.
- Be able to communicate correctly both orally and in writing in the field of law.
- Be able to analyse legal problems and synthesise their approach and resolution.

- Develop critical awareness for the analysis of the legal system and develop the legal dialectic.
- Acquire basic knowledge of legal arguments.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Private International Law must be oriented to obtain the following student learning outcomes:

1. To know and use correctly the proper terminology of PIL.
2. To understand the basic concepts of PIL.
3. In general terms, to know in depth the basic aspects regarding the forum, the ius and the recognition and enforcement.
4. Capacity to identify foreign elements in civil proceedings developed in Spain.
5. To understand the elements and functioning of the judicial and non-judicial application of foreign laws.
6. In specific terms, to identify the criteria concerning the forum, the ius and the recognition and enforcement to matters related with personal status and property rights.

TEACHING METHODOLOGY

The special nature of this field of law and the significant volume of legal instruments involved require important effort by the Lecturer and students.

Theoretical explanation. The Lecturer will present and explain in a dynamic way the basic elements which must lead students to understand the subject, using practical cases, analysis of case law and doctrine. The student shall be engaged actively to participate in the learning process by reading the Lesson before the class and using the handbook and the legislation of Private International Law in an active environment of maximum attention, silence and respect.

Applied activities. They will consist of analysis of case law and experts' reports and, above all, resolution of practical cases. They will be developed as a supplement of the theoretical classes presented by the Lecturer notwithstanding the possibility of making them outside the classroom. They will require the participation of students and each Lecturer will establish the ones which will be subject to evaluation. They will help students to become familiar with the relevant materials and legislation of this field.

Supplementary activities. Each Lecturer responsible of this subject will participate at least in a workshop or seminar related with the subject alternatively when scheduled. They will be organised either focusing particularly on matters covered only by this subject or coordinating the activity with other colleagues of other departments in those cases where the topic is interdisciplinary. In any case, these activities will be taken into consideration in the continuous assessment.

Supervised activities. The Lecturer will suggest some supervised activities, i.e. the analysis of doctrine, search of case law, preparation of practical cases. He will also consider the possibility of scheduling some activities within the workload of students aimed at strengthening their knowledge.

Office hours. Any question or concern students may have related with this subject will be resolved during the office hours every Lecturer establishes to this end.

EVALUATION

Evaluation system.

Oral or written test consisting of one or more exams, which may have an objective nature and include theoretical and practical questions and/or practical cases.

Continuous assessment of each student, based on regular attendance and active participation in activities developed in class, such as resolution of practical cases or participation in workshops, delivery of papers and/or reports and/or oral presentations about such activities, either individually or in group, taking into consideration the degree of involvement and the effort done by the student in the teaching-learning process and his/her skills and attitude shown during the development of such activities.

Continuous assessment of each student, based on attendance to seminars and visits to entities; and, if applicable, delivery of papers/reports and/or oral presentations about the organized activity, either individually or in group, taking into consideration the degree of involvement and the effort done by the student in the teaching-learning process and his/her skills and attitude shown during the development of such activity.

ADDENDUM COVID-19

This addendum will only be activated if the health situation requires so and with the prior agreement of the Governing Council

PRESENTIAL TEACHING MODEL: No significant changes are foreseen in the teaching methodology, which will be specified at the discretion of each lecturer.

BLENDED TEACHING MODEL: THEORETICAL-PRACTICAL CLASSES WITH ALTERNATE WEEKLY ATTENDANCE FOR STUDENTS. During the weeks of non-attendance autonomous work of students is foreseen, of a theoretical-practical nature, including activities such as practical cases, analysis of judgments, doctrinal readings, handbooks, ... etc. Each lecturer will specify the activities to be carried out in his/her group in the relevant Syllabus Annex.

ONLINE TEACHING MODEL: In case online classes must be set up due to the sanitary crisis, each lecturer will choose the channel through which he/she will continue to develop his/her academic obligations, which may include (even cumulatively) uploading materials at “Aula Virtual”, conducting BBC video conferences, organizing continuous assessment activities of different nature, etc.

ADJUSTMENTS TO THE COVID ADDENDUM FOR THE SECOND FOUR-MONTH PERIOD ADAPTED TO THE RESOLUTION OF THE RECTOR OF 28 JANUARY 2021 AND THE DIRECTIVES OF THE FACULTAT DE DRET FOR ITS BACHELOR'S DEGREE COURSES

During the month of February 2021, this distance or distance teaching model will be followed, which will be adapted to the provisions of the Instruction of the Rector of 28 January 2021 and the "Adjustments in the document of adaptation of the degree courses of the Faculty of Law of the University of Valencia in the second four-month period of the academic year 2020/2021 due to the health crisis caused by the COVID-19 pandemic". This model will be revised and adapted, if necessary, to the instructions received by the Faculty and the University depending on the evolution of the circumstances.

For the subject of Private International Law, specifically, it involves:

1. The teaching of classes via synchronous videoconference through the Blackboard platform in the same timetable foreseen for face-to-face classes.
2. Individual or group tutorials will be carried out via institutional mail, through the virtual classroom tools or by videoconference via the Blackboard platform.
3. Complementary activities will be carried out in non face-to-face mode, preferably through the webinar format.
4. The contents, workload and assessment will be maintained in the terms initially envisaged in the academic guide. Lecturers may make specific materials available to students for the second term to complement the development of these activities in a non-classroom mode.
5. If circumstances permit, the hybrid teaching model will be resumed as soon as possible. The final exam of the course will be face-to-face (always complying with the regulations of capacity and interpersonal distance, for which it will be sequenced in two shifts if necessary) until otherwise provided for in the regulations.
6. This model of non-attendance teaching will be reviewed and adapted, if necessary, to the instructions received by the Faculty and by the University in accordance with the evolution of circumstances. All revisions and adaptations will be communicated to the students as soon as possible and with sufficient time in advance to be able to adapt to the changes introduced.
