SUMMARY

This course is placed within the itinerary foundations of the Law of the fourth year of Degree in Law.

The concept of human rights is paramount in our legal system, so its study is fundamental in the Degree in Law. Hence, it is studied from different perspectives and in relation to many subjects. Moreover, one of the scopes of this course is to approach to the concept of human rights from a critical perspective. This view is enhanced, not only because university students have to be critical in the study of the Law, but also because human rights need to be considered from that perspective in order to understand the relation that existis between Law and the ideal of justice.

The critical approach to the study of Human Rights will be carried out in three different stages: the historical, the conceptual and the interpretative.

PREVIOUS KNOWLEDGE

Relationship to other subjects of the same degree

There are no specified enrollment restrictions with other subjects of the curriculum.

Other requirements

This Course is part of one of the optional specialization paths offered by the law degree. This course is scheduled to be taught in the 4th year of the Degree.
