SUMMARY

English Language II is a compulsory first-year (second semester) subject that is part of the module English Language and Linguistics and the sub-module English Language in the English Studies degree programme of the Universitat de València (approved in 2010). It is also part of the Translation and Interlinguistic Mediation programme and of the English Studies minor in the Modern Languages and Literatures, Catalan Language and Literature, Hispanic Studies, and Classics degree programmes. In the English Studies degree, this subject is related to the series English Language I-VIII in the aforementioned module and also to other subjects in the English Linguistics sub-module such as English Phonology, History of the and Second Language Acquisition.

The aim of the course is to develop communicative skills in English (listening comprehension and oral expression, communicative interaction and mediation) up to Level B2 in multiple contexts.

At the same time, the course aims to promote autonomous learning, self-assessment, and remedial work with the lecturer.

Summary of Linguistic Content in English Language II

The texts and activities we will see are designed to introduce students to some of the social, geographic, gender and age variations in English. Although we will be looking at each in turn, it should be obvious that all four types of variation overlap. We will also look at some of the important concepts in the field such as accent and dialect, standardisation, language planning, prescriptive and descriptive approaches to language

Other requirements

OUTCOMES

1000 - Degree in English Studies

- Apply ICT and computer programs, either locally or through a network, in the field of English Studies.
- Work and learn autonomously, and plan and manage ones workload.
- Demonstrate communicative and social competence in the English language (oral and written comprehension and expression, communicative interaction and mediation that includes correct grammar and style).
- Describe and explain theoretical and practical aspects of English phonology, lexis, morphology, syntax, text and discourse.

1009 - Degree in Translation and Interlinguistic Mediation(English)

- Work and learn autonomously and plan and manage work time in the field of translation and linguistic mediation.

- Know the grammar and develop communicative skills in (a) foreign language(s), applied to translation and linguistic mediation, at a C1C2 level of the Common European Framework of Reference (CEFR) (language B).

LEARNING OUTCOMES

FOR ENGLISH STUDIES:

On successful completion of this course, students will be to

- demonstrate communicative and social competence in the English language (listening comprehension and oral expression) at the B2 level of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages.
- use English to explain linguistic phenomena, i.e., achieve metalinguistic skills.
- recognize different grammatical categories and their corresponding function and relate them to situational factors in discourse
- use tools, programmes and software designed specifically for the study of the English language and its literatures, including email, blogs and aula virtual.
- recognise and understand some of the major terms in variationist linguistics such as the concept of standardisation, prescriptive and descriptive approaches to language, prestige, etc.
- compare RP to other accents of English and be aware of the differences in vocabulary and grammar between British English and other varieties

FOR TRANSLATION & INTERLINGUISTIC MEDIATION STUDENTS:

- Acquire a knowledge of grammar and develop communicative competence in the language(s) chosen.

TEACHING METHODOLOGY

For students to reach the required level of English (see competence 14) and develop other competences which are also specified in this syllabus the following methodological approaches will be implemented:

- the teacher will formally present key concepts and also counsel, facilitate, organize, monitor, liaise, correct and assess students.
- the teacher will promote student-centred activities through some or all of the following: individual work, pair work, group work, problem solving, project work, and task-based learning.

Autonomous and/or group learning inside and outside the classroom, including computer-based activities will be encouraged.

Your teacher will give you information on requisites relating to attendance at the beginning of the course.

EVALUATION

Assessment breakdown for first and second calls.

A) Individual final examination that includes a listening test and a use of English test.	50%
B) Final oral test	30%
C) Activities carried out during the course	20%
Total	100%

To pass the subject students need to get at least 50% as an average of parts A, B and C. Students must also get 50% in each section of part A and a 50% in part B. The mark for the 20% of part C will be carried over to the second call. These activities (part C) can only be done during the course and cannot be handed in for the second call. The mark for these activities (part C) is only counted if the student passes parts A and B.

If a student fails one part of the examination, he/she would need to take all the parts again.

Assessment Criteria

Students will need to show that they have grasped the concepts introduced by their lecturer(s). They will also have to demonstrate that they have learnt the lexical, grammatical and functional items to be used in the multiple contexts seen in class.

The ability to communicate at the B2 (CEFR level) is required to pass the course as a whole. Students whose communication (written and/or oral) displays errors that are not consistent with the above level will fail the module regardless of their performance related to the course contents. Students will also have to prove that they have acquired a satisfactory level in the other specific competences.

Plagiarism will not be tolerated; it is a serious academic offence. Any student who is found to have committed plagiarism in his/her work for the course will face serious consequences which will lead to failing the whole subject.

Intellectual honesty is vital to an academic community and for the fair evaluation of the student's work. All work submitted in this course must be originally authored by every student. No student shall engage in unauthorized collaboration or make use of ChatGPT or other AI composition software.
