Other requirements

OUTCOMES

1000 - Degree in English Studies

- Students must be able to apply their knowledge to their work or vocation in a professional manner and have acquired the competences required for the preparation and defence of arguments and for problem solving in their field of study.
- Students must have the ability to gather and interpret relevant data (usually in their field of study) to make judgements that take relevant social, scientific or ethical issues into consideration.
- Students must be able to communicate information, ideas, problems and solutions to both expert and lay audiences.
- Demonstrate, within the field of English Studies, an ethical attitude that focuses on aspects such as gender equality, equal opportunities, the values of the culture of peace and democracy and a sensitiveness regarding environmental problems and sustainability while, at the same time, knowing about and being able to appreciate linguistic diversity and multiculturalism.
- Demonstrate communicative and social competence in the English language (oral and written comprehension and expression, communicative interaction and mediation that includes correct grammar and style).
- Develop a critical ability to explain literary texts in English and to identify aesthetic conventions, movements, periods, genres, authors and works in English language and their modes of production.
- Relate geographical and historical aspects and the most relevant institutions in the Anglophone world to contemporary society and culture.
- Know and apply the currents and methodologies of literary theory and criticism.
- Have and apply general knowledge in humanistic areas related to this field of study.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

By successfully completing the course students will be able to:

- recognize and explain the distinctive linguistic, literary and cultural features of the texts studied.
- apply concepts and knowledge related with the aesthetic conventions, evolution, genres, movement, modes of production and the reception of plays of the English theatre in the 19th, 20th and 21st centuries
- identify authors and works in the contexts of the period, and passages from works they have read, and assess their meaning and significance,

- explicate, interpret or criticize plays in English using various methodological approaches.
- gather and synthesize printed and electronic information regarding the issues studied, value their critical relevance, and quote it properly.
- express and discuss their own reading experiences and critical responses in essays, projects, oral presentations or tests.

TEACHING METHODOLOGY

Theory-based classes: lectures and case studies.

Lectures will focus on clarification and discussion of key concepts and techniques rather than on presentation of theoretical matter students can find in the bibliography.

Criticism and discussion of plays in which students are encouraged to put into use their critical competence.

Practical classes: problem solving and case studies.

Discussion of the plays dealt with, making use of the new technologies, followed by class debates.

Other activities: Tutorials for orientation in preparing papers and projects.

EVALUATION

A. Individual written examination consisting of questions on the contents of the course: 50%

B. Practical test on the contents and mandatory and optional readings: 30%

C. Activities carried out during the course: 20%

In order to pass the subject students must pass the individual exam and practical test with a minimum average mark of 4 out of 8 points. Only then will the mark for the activities carried out during the course (up to 2 points) be summed up to calculate the final mark.

The marks obtained in the “Activities carried out during the course” will be carried over to the second call. These activities can only be done during the course and cannot be handed in for the second call.

The ability to communicate at the B2+ (CEFR level) is required to pass the course as a whole. Students whose written and/or oral communication display errors that are not consistent with the above level may fail the module regardless of their performance related to the course contents.

IMPORTANT: Plagiarism will not be tolerated; it is a serious academic offence and therefore will be penalized by failing the course. Intellectual honesty is vital to an academic community and for the fair evaluation of the student's work. All work submitted in this course must be originally authored by every student. No student shall engage in unauthorized collaboration or make use of ChatGPT or other AI composition software.
