RESUMEN

In this course, students will develop a thorough knowledge of the historical, cultural, religious, literary and critical contexts of English literature from its origins until ca. 1600. Selected works of English and related literature from the Anglo-Saxon (Old English) period through the early Renaissance will be studied. Featured texts include Beowulf, Sir Gawain and the Green Knight, Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, a selection of sonnets by Wyatt, Surrey, Sidney, Spenser and Shakespeare, Marlowe's Dr. Faustus, Thomas More's Utopia, and others.

This course seeks to familiarize students with the main movements, genres, authors and works of medieval and sixteenth-century English literature, and to guide them in the development of critical skills needed to understand and provide a reasoned response to literary texts in relation to a variety of issues such as politics, economy, gender relations, social stratification, censorship or religious and philosophical questions.

Within the context of social entrepreneurship education for the Humanities, creativity, originality, autonomy, professionalism, risk management and self esteem will be stimulated from the perspective of the critical reading and discussion of the selected texts. They will have a better perception of the value of fulfilling deadlines, facing challenges, making commitments and compromising. They will better understand the historical evolution of risk management and of different problem-solving techniques.

METODOLOGÍA DOCENTE

Theoretical classes will be structured around lecture classes that aim to provide the necessary historical and cultural context for each period, author and text under consideration.

Practical sessions will focus on the close reading and group discussion of representative excerpts included in the reading list.

Lectures will focus on clarification and discussion of key concepts and techniques for students. Consequently, they are expected to work on assigned tasks (reading sections from course dossiers, answering questions set in advance, etc.) before attending class.

Other activities: Tutorials for individual orientation in preparing papers, content revision, etc.

EVALUACIÓN

The assessment of competences and learning outcomes will consist of the following procedures:

1. A final written exam (50%): consisting of an essay on the set texts (40%) and a multiple choice test on the theoretical aspects of the course (10%)
2. A practical test (30%) consisting of the identification, translation and commentary on the significance of two quotes chosen from the set texts (15% each commentary)
3. A final assessment interview (15%) consisting of a five-minute oral presentation on a topic chosen by the student from a list, followed by a short question-and-answer session.
4. Class participation (5%).

In order to pass the subject, students must obtain a minimum of 5 points out of 10 in both the interview and in the written and practical tests.

Students attending the second call will have to sit for a written exam (essay 50% and multiple-choice test 10%) and a practical test (40%, two quotes). No marks obtained in the first call will be carried forward to the second call.

The ability to communicate at the C1+ (CEFR level) is required to pass the course as a whole. Students whose communication (written and/or oral) displays errors that are not consistent with the above level will fail the module regardless of their performance related to the course contents.
