OUTCOMES

1000 - Degree in English Studies

- Students must be able to apply their knowledge to their work or vocation in a professional manner and have acquired the competences required for the preparation and defence of arguments and for problem solving in their field of study.
- Students must have the ability to gather and interpret relevant data (usually in their field of study) to make judgements that take relevant social, scientific or ethical issues into consideration.
- Students must be able to communicate information, ideas, problems and solutions to both expert and lay audiences.
- Design and manage projects in language and literature in the academic and professional fields.
- Apply ICT and computer programs, either locally or through a network, in the field of English Studies.
- Work in a team in contexts related to English Studies and develop interpersonal relationships.
- Work and learn autonomously, and plan and manage ones workload.
- Demonstrate communicative and social competence in the English language (oral and written comprehension and expression, communicative interaction and mediation that includes correct grammar and style).

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Having successfully completed the course, students will be able to

- Carry out in-depth studies and summaries using search tools to access the literature on linguistics applied to translation.
- Explain concepts and theoretical principles concerning linguistics applied to translation.
- Translate literary and audiovisual texts in English to one of the official languages of the Valencian Community.
- Draft a report containing an analysis and assessment of a translation performed by applying knowledge in translation studies.
- explain the principles, priorities and constraints of dubbing and subtitling.

DESCRIPTION OF CONTENTS

1. Analysis and translation of literary texts: detecting and solving translation problems involving linguistic variation (register, dialects, chronolects), cultural elements, humour, ideology, tone and style.

2. Analysis and translation of audiovisual texts: priorities and specific constraints in dubbing and subtitling: interaction of image and sound with words, synchronization,

3. Basics of criticism and assessment of literary and audiovisual translation.

4. Specific strategies for verse translation.

5. Translating dialogue for performance.

6. Introduction to professional aspects of creative translation: conventions in dubbing scripts, agencies, associations, tools.

WORKLOAD

Theory classes	60,00	100
Study and independent work	60,00	0
Preparation of evaluation activities	30,00	0
TOTAL	150,00

TEACHING METHODOLOGY

Theory-based classes: lectures and case studies.

Lectures will focus on clarification and discussion of key concepts and techniques rather than on exposition of matter students can find in the dossiers and bibliography. Consequently students are expected to work on assigned tasks (reading sections from course dossiers, answering questions set in advance) before attending class.

Practical classes: problem solving and case studies.

Other activities: tutorials for orientation in preparing papers and projects.

EVALUATION

The assessment for both the first and second calls will be carried out through the following procedures:

- A- A commented literary translation project (assessing unit 6 and literary translation as a whole) (35%)
- B- A short piece of criticism of an assigned audiovisual translation (assessing units 2 and 3) (25%)
- C- Objective-response and short-answer tests through Aula Virtual on the contents of units 1, 4 and 5 (40%)

To pass the subject students need to get at least 50% in procedure A, 50% in procedure B, and 50% as an average in the different assessment activities in procedure C.

Marks above 50% obtained in the first call in each of the three procedures will be carried forward to the second call.

The ability to communicate at the C1+ (CEFR level) is required to pass the course as a whole. Students whose communication (written and/or oral) displays errors that are not consistent with the above level will fail the module regardless of their performance related to the course contents.

Plagiarism will not be tolerated; it is a serious academic offence. Any student who is found to have plagiarised his/her work will fail the whole subject.
