SUMMARY*Victorian culture and fiction

This course seeks to familiarize students with the Victorian period, ranging from the late 1830s to the very early 20th century, focusing specifically on fiction, as the novel was the most popular genre at the time. Students will be guided in the development of critical skills needed to understand and provide a reasoned response to literary texts in relation to issues such as gender relations, social stratification, ideological censure or religious ideas. This period will be studied stemming from novels written in those years, although it will also be approached from a contemporary perspective.

PREVIOUS KNOWLEDGE

Relationship to other subjects of the same degree

There are no specified enrollment restrictions with other subjects of the curriculum.

Other requirements

This course is related to different subjects in the area of literature, but there are no specified enrolment restrictions.

English language knowledge to read the works in the original (not in translation or simplified form) and the necessary bibliography is required. The ability to communicate at C1 (CEFR) level will be required to pass the course.

OUTCOMES

1000 - Degree in English Studies

- Students must have acquired knowledge and understanding in a specific field of study, on the basis of general secondary education and at a level that includes mainly knowledge drawn from advanced textbooks, but also some cutting-edge knowledge in their field of study.
- Students must be able to apply their knowledge to their work or vocation in a professional manner and have acquired the competences required for the preparation and defence of arguments and for problem solving in their field of study.
- Students must be able to communicate information, ideas, problems and solutions to both expert and lay audiences.
- Students must have developed the learning skills needed to undertake further study with a high degree of autonomy.
- Demonstrate communicative and social competence in the English language (oral and written comprehension and expression, communicative interaction and mediation that includes correct grammar and style).
- Develop a critical ability to explain literary texts in English and to identify aesthetic conventions, movements, periods, genres, authors and works in English language and their modes of production.
- Relate geographical and historical aspects and the most relevant institutions in the Anglophone world to contemporary society and culture.
- Know and apply the currents and methodologies of literary theory and criticism.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

On successful completion of this course, students should be able to:

- write essays on topics assigned to by the lecturer or chosen by the student related to one or several literary works in English;
- identify and describe the aesthetic conventions, their evolution, modes of production and reception of works, genres and movements in English literature;
- explain and assess literary texts in English using different critical approaches and in relation to their respective literary and historical contexts;
- write a stylistic commentary or 'practical criticism' essay on a literary excerpt or a short literary text in English;
- identify excerpts from literary works in English covered during the course and assess their significance;
- write a review of a literary work in English, a translation, a theatre production, a film adaptation or an adaptation to other art forms.
