RESUMEN

Delving into a selection of American short stories, novels, poems, and films, this course will examine the concepts of space and travel in North America. We will embark on a road trip that will cross a wide variety of urban and rural territories, following the historical and literary journeys of Native American communities, settler pioneers, explorers, travelers, tourists, immigrants, misfits, and smugglers, among others. We will focus on classic tropes such as the road, the map, the migration trail, the inner quest, the tourist site, the border, or the crossroads encounter. Through our critical journey, we will examine the networks of power that have traditionally constructed the spaces of the Americas while we identify potential sites of resistance that reconfigure and open up borders and spaces of representation for all human and other-than-human groups.

EVALUACIÓN

Assessment in the FIRST and SECOND CALLS:

Type of assessment % of final grade

ASSESSMENT TYPE A: For students who attend class regularly

- a) Final Essay – 60%
- b) In-class critical responses or quizzes – 20%
- b) In-class or online forum student participation – 20%

ASSESSMENT TYPE B:

Students who fail to take the mandatory responses/quizzes and/or participate in a regular or satisfactory manner will not be allowed to do a final essay and will take a comprehensive final examination instead. This final examination will have a theoretical and a practical component and will be worth 100% of the grade.

Assessment Criteria

The aim of the final essay, responses, quizzes, and graded participation is:

- 1) to assess the students's assimilation of knowledge and concepts imparted during lectures and
- 2) to assess their understanding of and critical response to texts studied in class as reflected in the ability to manage the appropriate methods and techniques of analysis

The ability to communicate at the C1+ (CEFR level) is required to pass the course as a whole. Students whose communication (written and/or oral) displays errors that are not consistent with the above level will fail the module regardless of their performance related to the course contents.

Students should be aware that plagiarism in the final paper, in their critical responses, and/or in their written participation will result in a failing grade for the module. You need to cite all your sources using a standard citation style such as MLA or APA. You must include in-text parenthetical citations and a full bibliography.

SECOND CALL: For students who chose Assessment Type A: The participation and quizzes mark will be carried over to the second call. They cannot be improved for the second call. Assessment Type B students have to take the full comprehensive exam.
