SUMMARY

This course is part of the studies of Literature and culture in the French language, which is made up of 4 subjects taught in the 1st and 2nd year of the LML Degree. It deepens and broadens the competences and contents of the module: Introduction to texts in French literature, Literature and culture in French language 1 and Literature and culture in French language 2.

Thus, the study of French literature will be completed with works, movements and representative authors of the classical and baroque times and of the 18th century. Support based on social, artistic and philosophical studies will be used, with subjects of special relevance as a common thread in the configuration of the modern individual, such as the relationships between writing, culture, thought and identity. It is about providing suitable knowledge so that students can establish bridges between both eras and understand that any break or avant-garde is based (by assimilation or opposition) in a previous tradition.

PREVIOUS KNOWLEDGE

Relationship to other subjects of the same degree

There are no specified enrollment restrictions with other subjects of the curriculum.

Other requirements

The course is taught in French. A minimum level B2 of the European Framework is required and deals with documents in original version. It contributes to the reinforcement and competences of the French Language 4 course, of the same year and semester. Competences and contents of this course will be later developed in Studies in French-language literatures (narrative, theater, audiovisual arts and poetry). It completes the contents of Ethics and critical thinking of the same year.
