SUMMARY

The course seeks to provide students with guidelines about how to read and build a critical response to fiction, plays and poems of English literature; and to familiarize them with the main conventions, genres, works and authors in the different periods of English-speaking literatures in Great Britain, Ireland and the Commonwealth. Students are expected to be able to locate individual works and authors in their historical and cultural context, and to gain knowledge of the basic techniques and conventions of playwriting, the writing of poems, and the writing of prose and fiction.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Having successfully completed the course, students will be able to

- locate individual works and authors in their historical and cultural context
- describe the conventions and techniques used in specific texts as related to genres, periods and movements in English literature,
- identify passages from literary works in English that they have read
- explain the way the meaning and effect of a literary text are conveyed through its linguistic choices in a stylistic commentary 'close reading' or 'practical criticism' essay
- translate a text in English into the official languages of the Valencian Community

DESCRIPTION OF CONTENTS

1. Contexts and definitions. What is English literature? The problems of periodization and of canon formation in English literature. [References: Whitla, chapter 1; Bate, "What is it"; Rainsford, "Canons"]

2. Introduction to reading and analysing English literature. Close reading. How to write a critical and stylistic analysis of short literary texts (explaining the interaction between meaning and linguistic and formal choices) [Ref.: Miller; Peck and Coyle; "Introduction to Practical Criticism"].

3. How to read a poem. Rhythm and metre (accentual and accentual-syllabic systems) in English literature; types of rhyme; verse forms and stanzas; imagery; main genres in the English poetic tradition [Ref.: Lennard; Cavanagh, chapters 5, 6, 7 ; Whitla, ch. 7]. Stylistic analysis of short poems from the early modern, 18th-century, Romantic, Victorian periods, and 20th and 21st centuries.

4. How to read a play. Dramatic text (roles, speeches and dialogue, stage directions) and performance. Main genres in the English dramatic tradition. [Cavanagh, ch. 17 ; Whitla, ch. 7] Close reading of a Shakespeare play and of an illusionistic-mode play. Stylistic analysis of dramatic fragment.

5. How to read fiction. Story and narration; narrators (levels, participation in the story, perceptibility, reliability); focalization (point of view); speech and thought representation. Main narrative genres in English literature. [Ref.: Rimmon-Kenan, ch. 6, 7 and 8; Cavanagh, ch. 12; Whitla, ch. 6] Close reading of a novel or short story. Stylistic analysis of a narrative fragment.

TEACHING METHODOLOGYIn-class activities

Critical evaluation of primary and secondary source material: In-class discussion of the most outstanding and controversial issues relating to the major genres, historical periods, intellectual contexts, literary movements, key authors and works.

Lectures will focus on clarification and discussion of key concepts and techniques for students rather than on exposition of matter they can find in the dossiers and bibliography. Consequently, students are expected to work on assigned tasks (reading sections from course dossiers, answering questions set in advance) before attending class.

Close-reading of relevant texts taking into account the texts' specific circumstances of production and reception.

Other activities: Tutorials for individual orientation.

EVALUATION

Assessment breakdown in the First and Second Calls:

- Individual written exam : 40%
- Critical and stylistic analysis : 40%
- Activities carried out during the course : 20%

In order to pass the subject, students must obtain a minimum of a 5 in both their written exam and their critical and stylistic analysis. For the second call, they will only have to repeat the activity that has not reached that 5-point minimum.

The mark obtained in the “Activities carried out during the course” will be carried over to the second call. This mark shall not be reassessed in the second call, but will remain the same as in the first call.

The ability to communicate at the B2 (CEFR level) is required to pass the course as a whole. Students whose communication (written and/or oral) displays errors that are not consistent with the above level will fail the module regardless of their performance related to the course contents.

Plagiarism will not be tolerated; it is a serious academic offence. Any student who is found to have committed plagiarism in his/her work for the course will face serious consequences which will lead to failing the whole subject.
