TEACHING METHODOLOGY

The development of the course is structured in three sessions of theory and oral practices a week. In addition to attending regular class so they can count as working hours, learning must complement outside the classroom, studying daily lessons, conducting exercises and listening every day, caring way, the sound material.

Classes of theory and practice will be carried out, individually or in groups, reading, or the proposed dialogue exercises (talk, hear, ask and answer, write, read in Arabic). In all cases, guidelines will be given during the course.

EVALUATION

The evaluation is based on control of the acquisition of the knowledge and the skills development of the required level in the subject using three distinct parts: continued monitoring in the face activities (exercises, work and active assistance to theoretical and practical classes), a written final test of theoretical conceptual i/o and a final test of oral reading and conversation questions.

Criteria of evaluation

Knowledge of grammar and communication skills will be preferential object of evaluation. The evaluation of the work done during the course - through the exercises proposed in the Virtual Classroom - will be proportionally.

Theory

. The examination will consist of a test written with a series of short questions that focus on the most basic and important of all items on the agenda. Must demonstrate that they have understood, acquired and assimilated these basic points and the Arabic writing system is mastered.

Practices

. The examination will be an individual interview at the end of the written exam. It will consist of a series of questions that should be independent and phrases that will be necessary to translate orally from one language to another; There will also be a test of reading aloud and a control of vocabulary. The communicative skills (ask and answer, read) will be evaluated.

Type of assessment	% of final
