SUMMARY

We propose a program that allows students to have their first met on the orientation of marketing organizations, and to enable the implementation of marketing in the professional world. In subsequent courses, the students may attend another core course on marketing as International Marketing. Thus, those who access the itinerary of Organization and Marketing will complete their training in subjects such as Market Research, Communication Strategy, International Distribution and Consumer Behavior.

Marketing is defined as a set of processes aimed at creating, communicating and delivering value to customers and for managing customer relationships in order to benefit the organization and stakeholders. The main objective of this course is to provide students with greater ability to learn and respond to the challenges of business management. It aims to introduce students in the field of Marketing, with theoretical and practical training.

Throughout the course, an overview of the process of making business decisions will be covered. Even, it will be analyzed the appropriate marketing strategies and the main key actions in the field of marketing management for organizations. The course will also provide students with the tools and techniques for making business decisions in an integrated manner, taking into account the importance of marketing planning and the social responsibility.

TEACHING METHODOLOGY

The method to be applied in the lectures (theoretical classes) combines the explanations given by the lecturer with the reading and studying by the student of the textbook. Therefore, during the lectures the lecturer will present the main theoretical topics, illustrating them with up-to-date examples, and the students are expected to participate in the learning process by debating and solving different exercises. At home, the student should use the textbook to prepare and/or reinforce the lectures.

The practical classes will be devoted to the discussion of readings, case studies and other activities that will show the real-life implementation of marketing in organizations. It is essential that the student be familiar with the theoretical topics before undertaking the practice. Students will work both individually and in teams.

EVALUATION

The evaluation of the subject will be carried out through a final exam and continuous assessment tasks.

The written exam consists of various questions in which students must demonstrate their knowledge of the subject, their critical thinking and their ability to put it into practice.

The continuous evaluation will consist of practical activities carried out individually and in groups by the student during the course, based on reading reports, resolution of cases, oral presentations, attendance and active participation in class.

The final exam accounts for 60 percent of the final grade and 40 percent corresponds to the continuous assessment part.

NOTE. The student will have to pass the final exam for the continuous assessment grade to be taken into account in the calculation of the final grade for the course.

The marks of the written exam and the continuous assessment will count only for the first and second calls of the 2023-2024 academic year. No grade will be saved for subsequent courses.
