SUMMARY

We consider the definition of International Marketing, as "the strategic function that consists in understanding what is the motivation or benefit that a product (good or service) brings to a buyer that belongs to a market other than ours and meet their needs taking into account the particularities of the environment." On this basis, this course introduces the student to several aspects of international marketing with the main objective of developing tools for the identification, analysis and solutions of problems typical of international marketing operations. At the end of the course, it is intended that students have learnt to identify the problems of commercialization of a company, analyze these problems and provide valid solutions for the firm management.

TEACHING METHODOLOGY

For the development of the theory, the teaching will be online. In the virtual class will be uploaded the material used for preparation.

The practices will be developed by groups.

Attendance at practical sessions is compulsory. If unable to attend a session, the student must submit the assignment individually.

The teaching methodology will combine the practical part of the case studies, information search, analysis, documentation and development of a project.

The required tasks must be delivered by the deadline determined by the teacher.

If the student is unable to attend class as demonstrated by a reason of non attendance, the teacher can assess the possibility of delivering the practices individually by the student. If this is the case, the student must contact the teacher at the beginning of the semester.

EVALUATION

The evaluation of knowledge and control of learning will be developed as follows:

- The students will be examined independently of their knowledge and their theoretical and practical skills, being evaluated each part (theory and practice) on 5 points. The student needs to pass both parts, theory and practice, to pass the subject.
- The evaluation of the theoretical part will be done through a written exam that can be composed of: essay questions, short questions, case studies, multiple choice questions. The valuation is performed on 5 points. Part of the qualification of the practical part corresponds to a project supervised by the teacher. This project will be carried out throughout the semester. This part is non-recoverable continuous assessment. Those students who for justified reasons can not attend the practical classes should notify the teacher by October 2nd to establish an alternative continuous assessment system.
- The theory and practice parts must be approved separately in order to be averaged.
- In case of failing one of the two parts to the first call, the grade of the part passed will be kept for the second call.
