TEACHING METHODOLOGY

The methodology will be dynamic and functional. The student shall conduct classroom during class, because the subject presents a continuous evaluation modality (using cumulative sum of exercises and written tests). In any case, class attendance is mandatory, except in cases of demonstrated need.

EVALUATION

The maximum score is 100 %. In the file it will appear in base 10, which is the maximum score of the rating system. The evaluation of this subject is continuous and is based in different tests:

1. Written and oral tests, consisting of one or more exams that will consist of both theoretical and practical questions (60 %).

2. Evaluation of practical activities from a preparation of a group work (15 %) and its presentation (5 %).
3. Continuous evaluation of each student, based on the completion of the final practices of each subject (20 %).

The continuous evaluation exams will be only in the indicated days and cannot be done on any other date (except for illness with medic proof). Both the modular exams and the delivery of the different activities will be done throughout the semester.

On the date of the official exam (first announcement), the student will have the opportunity to deliver those assignments not submitted on time or to take those exams that they have not been presented during the semester. However, the student will not be able to repeat the tests failed.

On the date of the official exam (second announcement), the student may examine those tests that have been failed or deliver the group work, if it was not delivered or passed. The student will not be able to repeat either the presentation of the final practices of each topic, because these activities are not-recoverable activities. The percentages of this second announcement would be as follows:

1. Written and oral tests, consisting of one or more exams that will consist of both theoretical and practical questions (80 %).
2. Evaluation of practical activities from a preparation as a group work (20 %).

VERY IMPORTANT:

If the student does not obtain at least 40% in the tests, the marks obtained during the course cannot be added to the final mark.
