SUMMARY

The course Advanced consumer analysis and competition in the marketing plan, whose program is described in this document, is considered basic in the training of a marketing specialist, and there is a large volume of theoretical and empirical research that supports this subject within of the discipline of marketing. At the same time, in recent decades, business practices have undergone significant changes, which are developing in parallel with the increase in market complexity. This complexity has favoured, in the context of commercialization, the development of the strategic aspect of marketing that has as one of its fundamental functions the analysis and understanding of consumers and competition.

A successful marketing planning must start from the knowledge of the consumer and the competitive forces of the market, hence the importance of the subject.

In the subject, the different aspects that affect consumer behaviour, both individually and in groups, will be analysed, the purchasing models that determine these behaviours. The models of analysis of the behaviour of the competitors, as well as the main instruments necessary for the practical application in the organizations of these models in the processes of formulating the marketing plan and in its implementation.

The generic objective is to provide information, tools, protocols and indicators that allow analysing the behaviour of the consumer and the competition. Understanding and characterizing the consumer and the competition is the first axis on which the material is constructed. The second is to know indicators that help in strategic marketing planning.

EVALUATION

The evaluation of the subject conforms to article 6.4 of the regulations for evaluation and qualification of the University of Valencia for undergraduate and master's degrees which states: "The overall evaluation of students can be obtained as a result of a combination of the evaluation obtained in a final test together with that obtained in the different continuous evaluation activities carried out, according to which in this sense the teaching guide collects".

The subject is evaluated as follows:

1) PART A: EXAM + CONTINUOUS ASSESSMENT (50%)

(a) EXAM (20%): The examination is held on the official date. It is written and consists of questions of a theoretical and practical nature. It is scored on 2 points. The minimum grade to pass this part is 1 point. This part is RECOVERABLE, so:

- If the student passes the exam, the grade can be kept for the second call in case of not passing or not presenting the group work.
- If the student does not pass this part, he/she will have to take the exam of the second call.

b) CONTINUOUS EVALUATION (30%): This is the continuous evaluation of the practical activities carried out by the student during the course, individually and/or in group, as well as various on-line questionnaires. It is scored on 3 points. The mark obtained can be saved for the second call. This part is NOT RECOVERABLE.

It is MANDATORY to carry out the practices and the questionnaires. Not carrying out any of these activities or handing them in after the deadline will be marked with a 0.

The mark obtained in the continuous evaluation will be added to the mark of the exam IF THE MINIMUM SCORE OF 1 POINT HAS BEEN REACHED IN THIS EXAM.

A minimum score of 2.5 points must be obtained to pass part A (exam + continuous assessment).

2) PART B: GROUP WORK (50%)

The realization, presentation and exhibition of a group work is scored on 5 points. The minimum grade to pass this part and to be added with part A (exam + continuous assessment) is 2.5 points. This part is RECOVERABLE, so:-

If the student passes this part, the grade can be saved for the second call in case the minimum grade in part A (exam + continuous assessment) is not obtained.

- If the student does not pass this part, he/she will have to repeat the group work presenting it in the second call.

The final mark for the course is the sum of both parts provided that the student has obtained at least 2.5 points in part A (examination + continuous assessment) and 2.5 points in part B (group work).

Attendance at class sessions is compulsory.
