Other requirements

OUTCOMES

2239 - M.U. en Nuevos Periodismos, Comunicac.Polític.Soc_18-V1

- Students should be able to integrate knowledge and address the complexity of making informed judgments based on incomplete or limited information, including reflections on the social and ethical responsibilities associated with the application of their knowledge and judgments.
- Students should demonstrate self-directed learning skills for continued academic growth.
- Show sensitivity for work carried out with rigor, commitment and emphasis, by using inclusive, non-sexist and non-discriminatory language.
- Achieve the organisational and relational capacity to integrate personal work and capacities into the collective work carried out in teams, even in multidisciplinary environments.
- Develop reliable, innovative and creative methodological responses for the analysis of and intervention in complex communicative situations.
- Recognise and explain the ethical and deontological implications and the social responsibility derived from the research outcomes and their effects on the decision-making of the actors involved.
- Develop the capacity to adapt to possible organisational, time or availability limitations of material and/or personal resources in the field of intergroup and mass communication.
- Respect and promote fundamental rights, equal opportunities and non-discrimination on the grounds of economic status, ethnic origin, sexual orientation or beliefs.
- Respect and promote the principles of equality between men and women, universal accessibility for people with functional diversity, democratic values, the culture of peace and sustainability.
- Be able to locate, produce and manage information sources of all kinds in order to deal with information action on relevant social issues, such as freedom and safety, health, politics, cultural activity, communicative action, etc., by integrating information, communication and organisation technologies into the process.
- Be able to establish and delimit the profiles of rigorous and quality journalism in all kinds of fields but especially in those emerging from contemporary social reality in terms of sources, protocols of formulation, professional ethics and public responsibility.
- Be able to differentiate and discuss concepts that account for the social, communicative and cultural transformations in advanced societies in recent decades: knowledge society, network society, globalisation, information society, audience democracy, audience fragmentation, cyberpolitics, networked communities and other similar concepts in the field of information and communication.

- Be able to analyse large masses of data, opinion polls and/or measurements of a communicative nature (such as audience) in social, political and cultural processes.
- Be able to carry out theoretical work in the specific field of communication and journalism.
- Be able to carry out practical work adapted to real communicational environments with specificity in the fields of political communication and/or new journalistic specialisations, by applying the knowledge, skills and abilities acquired.

EVALUATION

It is necessary to attend 80% of the classes in order to be evaluated for the course.

The course will be evaluated through the following tests, with the weighting indicated in the overall grade of the module:

- the exam of a part of the contents of the module (30%)
- the participation in the data journalism workshop, through the realization of individual or group practices (20%).
- the realization of a course work, which allows to deal in depth with some of the contents of the course, from the applied analysis of current journalistic practices and essay reflection (50%).

ATTENTION: Work, exams or any other activity that students prepare for their teaching assessment must be original, without plagiarism or improper use of artificial intelligence. The detection of plagiarism, as a serious offence, will result in the immediate suspension of the respective call of the course. Copying or facilitating the copying of work between students on the degree course, irregularly accessing or appropriating the content of a test or exam in advance, facilitating or procuring the appropriation, alteration or destruction of the content or results of an assessable activity and impersonation in exams will also be considered serious misconduct, and will therefore lead to immediate suspension from the exam session. When the serious misconduct mentioned in this point is detected, the lecturer must inform the degree coordination office.

ATTENTION: Intellectual honesty is vital to an academic community and for the fair evaluation of the student's work. All work submitted in this course must be originally authored by every student. No student shall engage in unauthorized collaboration or make use of ChatGPT or other AI composition software.
