OUTCOMES

2246 - M.U. en Estudios Internacional. y Europeos 20-V.1

- Students should apply acquired knowledge to solve problems in unfamiliar contexts within their field of study, including multidisciplinary scenarios.
- Students should possess and understand foundational knowledge that enables original thinking and research in the field.
- Students have the ability to discover and select both information and the appropriate sources thereof pertinent to the resolution of international and European problems/issues that present a certain degree of difficulty.
- Students are able to work effectively in a team in pursuit of the resolution of complex international and European problems.
- Students demonstrate an advanced capacity to master international judicial/political language; especially that related to Community matters.
- Students can work in multidisciplinary teams replicating real contexts, coordinating their own knowledge with that of team-members from other fields.
- Students are able to project their own knowledge on specific problems and, in so doing, distill the most significant arguments and conclusions for their resolution.
- Students develop the practical aspects of the subjects/matters raised in the formal teaching through the identification, communication and resolution of problems that emerge during the execution of the activities/tasks they are assigned, enabling them to compare, evaluate and, where necessary, devise solutions to the problems and anticipate them by means of due planning.
